Plaintiff,

v.

OMAR QAZI, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 3:20-cv-03426-JD

DEFENDANTS OMAR QAZI AND SMICK ENTERPRISES, INC.'S NOTICE
OF MOTION AND SPECIAL MOTION TO STRIKE CLAIMS UNDER
CALIFORNIA'S ANTI-SLAPP
STATUTE, CIV. PROC. CODE §425.16,
AND MOTION TO DISMISS FIRST
AMENDED COMPLAINT UNDER FED.
R. CIV. P. 12(B)(6); MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

Time: 10:00 a.m.
Date: October 1, 2020
Before: The Hon. James Donato
Ctrm.: 11, 19th Floor

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on October 1, 2020, at 10:00 a.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in the above-titled Court, in Courtroom 11, 19th Floor, located at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94102, Defendants Omar Qazi and Smick Enterprises, Inc. ("Smick Defendants"), by and through counsel, will and hereby do make the following motions:

- Special Motion to Strike under Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") §425.16 ("anti-SLAPP"): The Court should strike the following claims as to the Smick Defendants:

a) Count I for Libel Per Se, b) Count III for Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress ("IIED"), and c) Count VI for Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law ("UCL").

The Court should strike these claims under the anti-SLAPP statute because the conduct at issue arises from protected activity, and Plaintiff cannot show a probability of prevailing on the claims as pled in his First Amended Complaint ("FAC"), including because the statements at issue constitute non-actionable rhetoric and opinion. If they prevail on this motion, the Smick Defendants will seek their attorney's fees and costs under CCP §425.16(c)(1).

- Motion to Dismiss Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. ("Rule") 12(b)(6): The Court should dismiss all claims against the Smick Defendants pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. If the Court does not strike Counts I, III, and VI under anti-SLAPP, the Court should dismiss these claims because:

a) Plaintiff's libel claim (Count I) is based on non-actionable rhetoric and opinion, b) Plaintiff's IIED claim (Count III) is duplicative of Plaintiff's libel claim, and Plaintiff has not identified outrageous conduct or severe emotional harm, and c) Plaintiff's UCL claim is not based on a "business practice," and Plaintiff has not alleged a loss of money or property or that the Smick Defendants obtained ill-gotten gains from him. The Court should also dismiss Count IV for Copyright Infringement, Count V for Removal of Copyright Management Information, Count VIII for Violation of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5, and Count X for Injunctive Relief because: a) Plaintiff does

1 not have copyright registrations for the alleged copyrights other than for the text of one
2 book, and the publication of snippets of the text alongside commentary constitutes fair
3 use, and b) there are no allegations showing that the Smick Defendants made material
4 misrepresentations causing Plaintiff losses under federal securities laws. If they prevail
5 on this motion, the Smick Defendants will seek their attorney's fees and costs for the 6 infringement claim under 17 U.S.C. §505.

7 This motion is based on this notice of motion and motion, the supporting 8 memorandum of points and authorities and declaration, the pleadings and other papers
9 on file in this action, and any other evidence that may be offered at a hearing if necessary.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES*INTRODUCTION

Defendants Omar Qazi and Smick Enterprises, Inc. ("Smick Defendants") request that the Court strike portions of and dismiss the entirety of the First Amended Complaint ("FAC") of Plaintiff Aaron Greenspan ("Plaintiff"), filed on July 2, 2020 [D.E. 20], without leave to amend.

The parties, who have opposing viewpoints about Tesla stock, have a history of engaging in public debate and exchanging insults on Twitter and other websites. Plaintiff, who has attracted both praise and enemies online, alleges that the Smick Defendants' Twitter posts (i.e., "Tweets") and other online content defamed and harassed him. However, Plaintiff only reads the statements literally and overlooks the fact that these internet postings must be read in their broad context. Parody, hyperbole, and argumentative Tweets and blog entries claiming that Plaintiff is a "rule breaker," "fake," "clown," and "criminal" who engaged in "tax fraud" are classic examples of non-actionable rhetoric and hyperbole. While such language may be distasteful to some, no reasonable reader would understand these statements as assertions of fact. As such, Plaintiff's claims based on these statements fail.

Thus, the Smick Defendants request that the Court strike Plaintiff's state law claims against the Smick Defendants (libel, IIED, and violation of the UCL) under California's anti-SLAPP statute, CCP §425.16, as the conduct at issue arises from protected activity, and Plaintiff cannot show a probability of prevailing on the claims based on the FAC, including because the posts at issue constitute non-actionable rhetoric and opinion. The Smick Defendants further request that the Court dismiss all remaining claims against the Smick Defendants without leave to amend pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Plaintiff's claims fail as a matter of law for the following reasons:

- Libel: Plaintiff's libel claim fails because the statements at issue are non-actionable rhetoric and opinion;

- IIED: Plaintiff's IIED claim fails because the claim is almost entirely duplicative of his libel claim, the remaining conduct is not "outrageous" as a matter of law, and Plaintiff has not alleged severe emotional distress arising from that conduct;
- UCL: Plaintiff's UCL claim fails because Plaintiff has not alleged that the Smick Defendants engaged in a "business practice," has not alleged that he lost any money or property as a result of that practice, and has not alleged that the Smick Defendants obtained ill-gotten gains from Plaintiff;
- Copyright: Plaintiff's copyright claims fail because Plaintiff does not have copyright registrations for the alleged copyrights other than for the text of one book, and the publication of a few snippets from that book alongside commentary constitutes fair use;
- Exchange Act §10(b) and Rule 10b-5: Plaintiff's market manipulation claim fails because there are no allegations that the Smick Defendants made material misrepresentations causing Plaintiff loss under federal securities laws or that Plaintiff suffered any injury as a result.

Because Plaintiff cannot remedy these deficiencies, the FAC's state law claims should be stricken, and the remainder of the FAC dismissed, without leave to amend. The Smick Defendants will be entitled to their fees and costs for the anti-SLAPP motion under CCP §425.16(c)(1) and for the infringement claim under 17 U.S.C. §505.

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

Whether: (1) Plaintiff's state law claims against the Smick Defendants should be stricken under California's anti-SLAPP statute, CCP §425.16; and (2) whether all of Plaintiff's claims against the Smick Defendants, which are not stricken under anti-SLAPP, should be dismissed under Rule 12(b)(6).

STATEMENT OF FACTS

While the Smick Defendants dispute Plaintiff's factual allegations, including claims that Mr. Qazi posted certain content, Plaintiff's allegations are outlined below.

A. The Parties

Defendant Elon Musk is the CEO of Defendant Tesla, Inc. (collectively, “Tesla Defendants”). (FAC ¶¶2.) Mr. Qazi is a Tesla shareholder and customer. Mr. Qazi operates Smick Enterprises, Inc. (FAC ¶¶6.)

Plaintiff is a data journalist who runs the website www.plainsite.org, which hosts over 16 million court dockets. (FAC ¶¶21.) Plaintiff has been the subject of numerous internet posts and online debates, many of which include fiery insults. (FAC ¶¶127, 150 & Exs. B & I, passim.) For example, Plaintiff alleges that he was publicly referred to by third parties as a “psychopathic incel” and a “likely mass shooter.” (FAC ¶¶127, 150 & Exs. B & I, passim.)

Plaintiff has sought out and been covered by major media outlets over the years (in addition to soliciting media about the instant lawsuit). (FAC Ex. E (copying “russ.mitchell@latimes.com” on Notice of Intent to Sue); Declaration of Karl S. Kronenberger in Support of the Smick Defendants’ Anti-SLAPP Motion and Motion to Dismiss (“Kronenberger Decl.”) ¶¶2–33 & Exs. A–FF.) Launching his notoriety, Plaintiff was widely publicized in around 2007, including by The New York Times and other major news outlets, for his claim that he came up with the idea for Facebook. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶22, 31 & Exs. U & DD.) As a further example, in 2019, Business Insider and BBC News covered Plaintiff’s claim that more than half of Facebook’s users are fake (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶24, 25 & Exs. W & X.) In 2018, The Sun published an article titled, “Social Killer—Facebook has caused ‘countless deaths’, says original founder Aaron Greenspan.” (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶28 Ex. AA.) Plaintiff was later featured by various reporters about purported claims that he was unfairly omitted from the film The Social Network (about the history of Facebook) and was chronicled in 2013 for another suit against Facebook. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶17 & Ex. P.) In 2010, TechCrunch published an article titled “From ‘Face Book’ to FaceCash: How Aaron Greenspan Is Tackling Mobile Payments.” (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶33 & Ex. FF.)

Plaintiff has also used his own websites, www.aarongreenspan.com and www.plainsite.org, to report on claimed issues within the tech industry. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶2–9 & Exs. A–H.) Plaintiff used the www.plainsite.org website to publicize a “Reality Check” article about Tesla, Inc. in 2020 as well as a letter to a California State Senator in 2019. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶3–4 & Exs. B & C.) Likewise, Plaintiff has used his PlainSite Twitter account to disseminate numerous posts about Elon Musk and Tesla, including by “tagging” Mr. Musk in a number of posts, which are viewable by Mr. Musk’s over 35 million followers; and both pre- and post-lawsuit articles have reported on Plaintiff’s dispute with Mr. Musk, Tesla, and Mr. Qazi. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶10–12 & Exs. I–K.)

Finally, this lawsuit itself has generated substantial coverage in major media outlets. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶18–21 & Exs. Q–T.)

B. The Parody Twitter Accounts, Websites, and Related Conduct

Plaintiff attributes a number of allegedly defamatory Twitter posts to Mr. Qazi. (FAC ¶¶8–9.) The primary Twitter account associated with these Tweets is a pseudonymous “parody” account—the @Tesla_Truth Twitter account—which was operated under the name and photograph of the deceased Apple founder “Steve Jobs Ghost.” (FAC ¶¶27, 142, 158, Ex. B.) The @Tesla_Truth Twitter account is followed by at least 10,000-20,000 Twitter users. (FAC ¶59.) As Exhibit B to the FAC shows, the @Tesla_Truth account is used to engage in back-and-forth disputes with fiery language and insults about a variety of topics, including Plaintiff. (FAC Ex. B.) Plaintiff claims that Mr. Qazi, through the @Tesla_Truth parody Twitter account:

- Posted documents from Plaintiff’s restraining order proceedings with third party Diego MasMarques, Jr. (FAC ¶¶27–33, 37, 39, 43–44, 64–65, 112, 121 & Exs. D & I);
- Hurling insults, such as “Rule breaker / law breaker,” “he killed me for saying he didn’t invent facebook,” “learning disability due to aspergers,” “moron” and “After he dies I’ll keep telling people he sucked” (FAC ¶¶65, 72, 96, 123, 148 & Ex. B at p.4–25);
- Made unfounded “fraud” claims, such as “complete fraud,” “fraudulently registered as a non-profit charity,” “fraudulent ‘Think Foundation’ . . . and they can deduct

1 donations from their income tax!!!,” “How will Aaron Greenspan, a criminal guilty of felony
 2 tax fraud with no lawyer, do in court against two guys with a lot more money than him?,” 3 “clown who thinks he invented facebook and comited felony tax fraud” and “previously 4 stole DoD documents” (FAC ¶¶148 & Ex. B at 4–25);

5 • Posted in response to a third-party comment about Plaintiff: “The only thing that 6 has been revealed here is that Aaron Greenspan has child pornography at his house”
 7 (FAC ¶¶148, Ex. B p. 5); and

8 • Displayed Plaintiff’s Notice of Intent to Sue with a screenshot of Mr. Musk’s reply
 9 email stating “Does the psych ward know you have a cell phone?” (FAC ¶¶68–71).

10 Plaintiff also claims Mr. Qazi created the @PlainShite Twitter account, which 11 mocked Plaintiff’s PlainSite website, containing statements such as, “It’s plain to see –
 12 we are full of shit,” “It took a lot of hard work to break every single one of these rules with 13 our fraudulent charity,” and “we are running a fraudulent non-profit.” (FAC ¶¶52, 62, 148
 14 & Ex. B p. 26.) Plaintiff likewise claims Mr. Qazi created the websites www.plainshit.com, 15 www.plainshit.org, and www.plainsiite.org, which displayed Plaintiff’s copyrighted 16 photographs and made claims such as “This fraudulent charity is FULL OF SHIT . . . Have 17 you been harassed, intimidated, threatened or targeted for extortion by Aaron Greenspan
 18 . . .” (FAC ¶¶81, 101–102, 107–108.)

19 Plaintiff further alleges Mr. Qazi posted about him from the @WholeMarsBlog
 20 Twitter account and the wholemars.org website, stating “It’s time for the board of Plainsite 21 to face justice for their crimes,” “Plainsite’s tax fraud, harassment of Tesla customers, and 22 short and distort fraud,” “Maybe one day he’ll be charged too . . . he is a criminal,” “Why
 23 does Aaron Greenspan threaten his critics . . . while suppressing positive voices through 24 intimidation,” “Aaron Greenspan abuses his charity . . . he must pay back the taxes he 25 illegally avoided,” and “Aaron Greenspan is a cyberstalker who has been threatening and 26 harassing Omar and others . . .” These statements attracted comments and fiery insults
 27 from other parody accounts for “Elon,” “Musk,” and “Tesla.” (FAC ¶¶148 & Ex. B at p.30– 28 39.)

1 Plaintiff likewise alleges Mr. Qazi posted about him on the website
 2 vagfoundation.org, stating “Have you been a victim of harassment, intimidation, extortion, 3 sexual assault, identity theft, or cyberstalking by Aaron Greenspan? . . . The victims of 4 Aaron Greenspan Foundation is gathering evidence of Aaron Greenspan’s crimes . . .”
 5 (FAC Ex. H, p. 2–3.)

6 Plaintiff also claims Mr. Qazi published a 17,600-word “screed”—which reads like
 7 a personal blog and starts with “Written by Steve Jobs . . . Steve Jobs is Dead.” (FAC
 8 ¶¶135–136, 148 & Ex. I at p. 2, 39.) The “screed” contains claims such as “Greenspan 9 became more and more enraged, and also became worried about my allegations of his 10 tax fraud and misconduct.” (FAC ¶¶135–136, 148 & Ex. I p. 2, 39.) In this “screed,” third 11 parties added judgmental asides, such as that Plaintiff had “tertiary syphilis,” “kidney 12 stones,” and “anal pain chlamydia.” (FAC Ex. I, p. 25–26.)

13 Finally, Plaintiff alleges Mr. Qazi or others harassed him anonymously by making
 14 a phone call, communicating with his disabled brother, using the PlainSite Contact Us
 15 form with the message “M0ron,” subscribing Plaintiff to a “Psych Central Newsletter,” 16 creating a profile for Plaintiff on the website Pornhub, and adding false content about 17 Plaintiff on the Wikipedia website. (FAC ¶¶36, 45–47, 113–114, 119.)

18 C. Plaintiff’s Ongoing Public Disputes with the Smick Defendants

19 The FAC’s exhibits provide a glimpse into the heated public arguments between 20 the parties. For example, the @PlainSite Twitter account posted “Mr. Qazi sent text
 21 messages” with a screenshot of messages from an unidentified author, “presenting Omar
 22 Qazi (@OmarQazi), the ‘failure’ pretending to be Steve Jobs (@tesla_truth),” “While he’s 23 not making false statements on Twitter pretending to be Steve Jobs, Omar Qazi is raising
 24 capital . . .,” “Omar Qazi, who also goes by ‘Steve Jobs’ on Twitter . . . posted this video 25 which he then deleted . . .,” and “Does Elon Musk have thyroid cancer.” (FAC ¶40 & Ex.
 26 B. at p. 3, Ex. I at p. 22, 36, 38.) Further, the @AaronGreenspan Twitter account re-
 27 posted an @Tesla_Truth post stating “Now I’m going to drag his name through the mud
 28 until the day he does [sic]’ Says the guy potentially looking at a libel claim . . .” (FAC Ex.

B at p. 17.) Plaintiff also sent a direct message to Mr. Qazi stating “I have your IP address now . . .” and Plaintiff cc’d and bcc’d the press on multiple emails, including bcc’ing “russ.mitchell@latimes.com” with his Notice of Intent to Sue to Mr. Musk and Mr. Qazi. (FAC Ex. E at p. 2, Ex. I at p. 34, Ex. L at p. 2.)

D. Procedural History and Plaintiff’s Claims

Plaintiff filed an initial Complaint [D.E. 1] on May 20, 2020. Plaintiff filed a First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) [D.E. 20] on July 2, 2020. The FAC, which is 82 pages plus 19 exhibits totaling more than 1,500 pages, alleges defamation and securities claims against all Defendants as well as copyright, IIED, and UCL claims against the Smick Defendants.

ARGUMENT

A. Standard of Law

The Smick Defendants move to strike Plaintiff’s state law claims under California’s anti-SLAPP statute, CCP §425.16. The anti-SLAPP statute provides for striking state law claims where: (1) the defendant makes a prima facie showing that the claims arise from protected activity, and (2) if such a showing is made, the plaintiff fails to demonstrate legally sufficient claims to sustain a favorable judgment. See Sarver v. Chartier, 813 F.3d 891, 901 (9th Cir. 2016). Federal Courts review anti-SLAPP motions under Rule 12(b)(6) if the defendant only challenges the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff’s claim (and otherwise as a summary judgment motion under Rule 56). See Planned Parenthood Fed’n of Am., Inc. v. Ctr. for Med. Progress, 890 F.3d 828, 834 (9th Cir. 2018); Ramachandran v. City of Los Altos, 359 F. Supp. 3d 801, 811 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (noting a 12(b)(6) motion to strike considers whether a claim is properly stated); Century Sur. Co. v. Prince, 782 F. App’x 553, 557 (9th Cir. 2019) (confirming a plaintiff is not entitled to discovery where a special motion to strike does not challenge the factual sufficiency of the claims). With their anti-SLAPP motion, the Smick Defendants only challenge the FAC under the Rule 12(b)(6)

1 standard.<sup>1</sup>

2 The Smick Defendants move to dismiss any claims not stricken under anti-SLAPP
 3 pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6). To survive a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss for failure to state
 4 a claim, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state a
 5 claim for relief that is plausible on its face. See Heimrich v. Dep't of the Army, 947 F.3d
 6 574, 577 (9th Cir. 2020). A plaintiff must allege more than labels and conclusions and do
 7 more than state a formulaic recitation of the elements of a claim. Weiland Sliding Doors
 8 & Windows, Inc. v. Panda Windows & Doors, LLC, 814 F. Supp. 2d 1033, 1040 (S.D. Cal.
 9 2011). Moreover, claims sounding in fraud are subject to the heightened pleading
 10 standard of Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). Rule 9(b) requires the plaintiff to state with particularity 11 the circumstances constituting the fraud or mistake. See Becerra v. Dr Pepper/Seven Up, 12 Inc., 945 F.3d 1225, 1228 (9th Cir. 2019). A securities fraud claim, including one for 13 market manipulation, must satisfy both the pleading requirements of the Private 14 Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, 15 U.S.C. §78u-4(b) ("PSLRA"), and the 15 heightened pleading standard of Rule 9(b). See Police Ret. Sys. of St. Louis v. Intuitive 16 Surgical, Inc., 759 F.3d 1051, 1057 (9th Cir. 2014); ScriptsAmerica, Inc. v. Ironridge Glob.
 17 LLC, 56 F. Supp. 3d 1121, 1160 (C.D. Cal. 2014).

18 B. The state law claims should be stricken under anti-SLAPP.

19 The Court should grant the Smick Defendants' anti-SLAPP motion because 20 Plaintiff's state law claims arise from protected activity, e.g., public posts about Plaintiff
 21

22 <sup>1</sup> Because the Smick Defendants only rely on external evidence regarding the first prong
 23 of anti-SLAPP, this motion is not transformed into a summary judgment motion. See 24 Planned Parenthood Fed'n of Am., Inc., 890 F.3d at 833. (finding that where an anti-25 SLAPP motion is based only on legal deficiencies in the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff is not 26 required to present prima facie evidence supporting its claims, but if it is a factual challenge, then the motion must be treated as though it were a motion for summary judgment and discovery must be permitted).

27 If the case proceeds, the Smick Defendants anticipate contesting the attribution of 28 a significant number of the alleged defamatory statements to the Smick Defendants, filing a motion for summary judgment, and asserting counterclaims relating to Plaintiff's misconduct.

on public fora, and Plaintiff cannot show a probability of prevailing on his claims.

1. The conduct at issue arises from protected activity.

Pursuant to CCP §425.16(e)(3), a statement is protected if it is made in a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest.

Public Forum: The statements at issue were made in a public forum (Twitter and public websites). Courts have routinely held that websites accessible to the public qualify as public fora under anti-SLAPP. See, e.g., Iglesia Ni Cristo v. Cayabyab, No. 18-CV-00561-BLF, 2018 WL 4674603, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2018) (finding defendants satisfied the first step where the state law claims were based at least in part on posts on defendants' websites and on Twitter and other social media websites); Wong v. Jing, 189 Cal. App. 4th 1354, 1367 (2010). Plaintiff concedes that the statements at issue were published on Twitter and other publicly-available websites. (FAC ¶¶142–144, 149.)

Issue of Public Interest: California's anti-SLAPP law does not define "an issue of public interest." See Grenier v. Taylor, 234 Cal. App. 4th 471, 481–82 (2015). However, the public interest requirement must be construed broadly so as to encourage participation by all segments of our society in vigorous public debate related to issues of public interest. See Gilbert v. Sykes, 147 Cal. App. 4th 13, 23 (2007). The Legislature inserted the "broad construction" provision out of concern that judicial decisions were construing that element of the statute too narrowly. See id.

California cases establish that a public issue is implicated if the subject of the statement or activity underlying the claim (1) is a person or entity in the public eye; (2) could affect large numbers of people beyond the direct participants; or (3) involves a topic of widespread, public interest. See Sonoma Media Investments, LLC v. Superior Court, 34 Cal. App. 5th 24, 34 (2019); see, e.g., Gilbert v. Sykes, 147 Cal. App. 4th 13, 23 (2007) (prominent and well-respected plastic surgeon thrust himself into the public eye); Seelig v. Infinity Broad. Corp., 97 Cal. App. 4th 798, 808 (2002) ("By having chosen to participate as a contestant in [a reality television show], plaintiff voluntarily subjected herself to inevitable scrutiny and potential ridicule by the public and the media.").

Here, Plaintiff has repeatedly and voluntarily thrust himself into the public eye as evidenced by the significant news coverage of his conduct. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶1–33 & Exs. A–FF.) Moreover, Plaintiff concedes that the statements at issue involve a topic of widespread interest, alleging, “[t]hese harassing statements were read by a wide audience of at least 10,000-20,000 Twitter followers.” (FAC ¶59.) Further, Plaintiff concedes that “[m]any of these statements were published specifically to promote Defendant Tesla’s stock, its products, and its CEO, Defendant Musk . . . ,” an issue of public concern. (FAC ¶59.) Finally, the news coverage generated by Plaintiff’s filing of this lawsuit indicates that there is widespread interest in the statements underlying the lawsuit. (Kronenberger Decl. ¶¶10–12 & Exs. I–K.)

Because Plaintiff has thrust himself into the public eye and has admitted that the statements at issue were of widespread, public interest, the Smick Defendants have satisfied the first prong of the anti-SLAPP inquiry.

2. Plaintiff cannot show a probability of prevailing on his state law claims.

To withstand the Smick Defendants’ anti-SLAPP motion, Plaintiff must demonstrate a probability of prevailing on his state law claims. See CCP §425.16(b)(1). Because the anti-SLAPP motion attacks the pleadings, Plaintiff must show that each challenged cause of action is legally sufficient to sustain a favorable judgment. See Planned Parenthood Fed’n of Am. 890 F.3d at 834. The Court should grant the Smick Defendants’ anti-SLAPP motion because Plaintiff has not alleged a legally sufficient claim for defamation, ILED, or violation of the UCL, all of which are based on multiple opinion-laden, hyperbolic, and rhetorical online statements.

a. Plaintiff has not stated a claim for libel per se.

A claim for defamation/libel requires a showing of: (1) a statement of fact, (2) about plaintiff, (3) that is published, (4) false, (5) defamatory, (6) unprivileged, (7) with fault, and (8) causes harm. See Price v. Operating Engineers Local Union No. 3, 195 Cal. App. 4th 962, 970 (2011); Grenier v. Taylor, 234 Cal. App. 4th 471, 486 (2015). Plaintiff has not

1 alleged a viable claim for libel because the statements at issue constitute non-actionable
 2 statements of opinion, hyperbole, and rhetoric, rather than statements of fact, and certain
 3 statements are barred by the statute of limitations.

4 i. The statements are non-actionable opinion and rhetoric.

5 To state a claim for libel, a plaintiff must allege a statement is provably false, i.e., 6 one that can reasonably be interpreted as stating actual facts about the plaintiff. “When a 7 defamation action arises from debate or criticism that has become heated and caustic, as 8 often occurs when speakers use Internet chat rooms or message boards, a key issue
 9 before the court is whether the statements constitute fact or opinion.” Krinsky v. Doe 6, 10 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1174 (2008). In determining whether a statement contains an 11 assertion of objective facts or constitutes opinion, rhetoric, or hyperbole, courts consider:
 12 (1) whether the general tenor of the entire work negates the impression that the defendant
 13 was asserting an objective fact, (2) whether the defendant used figurative or hyperbolic 14 language that negates that impression, and (3) whether the statement in question is 15 susceptible of being proved true or false. See Obsidian Fin. Grp., LLC v. Cox, 740 F.3d 16 1284, 1293 (9th Cir. 2014) (reviewing decision from the district court in Oregon, which 17 has a similar anti-SLAPP statute to California); see also Lieberman v. Fieger, 338 F.3d 18 1076, 1080 (9th Cir. 2003) (applying these factors under the totality of the circumstances 19 and agreeing that the broad context, such as the general tenor of the work, showed 20 constitutionally-protected opinion); Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co., 497 U.S. 1, 17 (1990); 21 Eade v. InvestorsHub.com, Inc., No. LACV11-1315, 2011 WL 13323344, at *6 (C.D.
 22 Cal. July 12, 2011) (noting courts have generally found that internet bulletin boards and 23 chat room postings lend themselves to constitutional protection).

24 In Obsidian, the Ninth Circuit reviewed blog posts accusing individuals of “illegal 25 activity,” including “corruption,” “fraud,” “deceit on the government,” “money laundering,” 26 “defamation,” “harassment,” “tax crimes,” and “fraud against the government,” and 27 claiming that one individual paid off “media” and “politicians” and may have hired a hit 28 man to kill her. 740 F.3d at 1293. Reviewing the three factors relating to factual assertions, the court found that: (1) the general tenor of the blog posts negated the impression that the author was asserting objective facts, including as the website obsidianfinancesucks.com led readers to be predisposed to view the statements with a certain amount of skepticism and understanding that they will likely be one-sided viewpoints rather than assertions of provable facts, (2) hyperbolic language, such as “immoral,” “really bad,” “thugs,” “evil doers,” and “hired a hit man to kill her,” or that “the entire bankruptcy court system is corrupt,” dispel any reasonable expectation that the statements assert facts, and (3) in the context of a non-professional website containing consistently hyperbolic language, the posts were not sufficiently factual to be proved true or false. See id. at 1293–94.

Other cases have similarly afforded constitutional protection for rhetorical hyperbole, vigorous epithets, lusty and imaginative expressions of contempt, caricature, opinion, parody, imaginative expression, and language used in a loose, figurative sense. See, e.g., Nicosia v. De Rooy, 72 F. Supp. 2d 1093, 1104 (N.D. Cal. 1999) (in context, defendant’s online statements that plaintiff was a “fraud,” “criminal,” had acted illegally, had committed perjury, was dishonest, was “manipulative,” and carried on “exploitative business relationships” were hyperbole and not defamatory); Ferlauto v. Hamsher, 74 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1401–4 (1999) (affirming the sustaining of demurrer without leave to amend and finding statements such as “Kmart Johnnie Cochran,” “creepazoid, and “loser wannabe lawyer,” while name-calling, were not actionable and not to be taken literally); Morningstar, Inc. v. Superior Court, 23 Cal. App. 4th 676, 687 (1994) (holding failure to state a cause of action where article titled “Lies, Damn Lies, and Fund Advertisements” was protected imaginative expression or rhetorical hyperbole); Seelig v. Infinity Broad. Corp., 97 Cal. App. 4th 798, 811 (2002) (finding anti-SLAPP motion should have been granted where terms like local loser and big skank were not actionable as no reasonable listener would take them as factual pronouncements); Balzaga v. Fox News Network, LLC, 173 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1342 (2009) (concluding insufficient basis for a factfinder to conclude that “Manhunt at the Border” caption, when viewed in context, was actionable);

1 Franklin v. Dynamic Details, Inc., 116 Cal. App. 4th 375, 389 (2004) (statements that an
 2 individual “stole” copyrighted material, “compromised” DDi, and “plagiarized” data were 3 rhetorical hyperbole in context); Krinsky v. Doe 6, 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1159 (2008)
 4 (finding “crooks” and “fake medical degree” non-actionable opinions).

5 Here, all of the Smick Defendants’ alleged statements, including “Statements 1-6 32” (FAC ¶148), are non-actionable rhetoric, opinion, and hyperbole made in the context 7 of informal online banter, which no reasonable person would understand as assertions of 8 objective facts. First, the general tenor of the content from the “parody” @Tesla_Truth, 9 @PlainShite, and @WholeMarsBlog Twitter accounts and related websites, such as 10 “vagfoundation.org,” and a “screed” starting with “Written by Steve Jobs . . . Steve Jobs 11 is Dead,” negate the impression that the publishers were asserting objective facts. The 12 statements must be viewed in the context of the ongoing online disputes and fiery
 13 language, which includes regular insults about Plaintiff from multiple authors. (FAC ¶112
 14 & Exs. B & I, passim.) Second, the statements repeatedly use figurative and hyperbolic
 15 language, negating any impression of an assertion of fact. As examples, the statements
 16 hurled insults, such as “clown,” “Rule breaker,” “he killed me for saying he didn’t invent 17 facebook,” and “After he dies I’ll keep telling people he sucked.” Moreover, that the 18 statements were made in the context of heated debate and were often posted as 19 rhetorical questions, further demonstrate the statements were opinion. (See FAC ¶¶65, 20 72, 96, 123, 148 & Ex. B passim.) Third, in the context of non-professional Twitter and 21 website posts containing consistently hyperbolic language and repeatedly engaging in 22 debate and argument, the statements are not susceptible of being proved true or false.
 23 See Obsidian Fin. Grp., LLC, 740 F.3d at 1293. Thus, the broad context demonstrates 24 that the statements were made as “sticks and stones” insults by someone with opposing 25 viewpoints from, and with a strong bias against, Plaintiff. The statements were general in 26 nature without any specific-enough allegations to imply a provable factual assertion.

27 While Plaintiff identifies numerous allegedly unlawful statements, they fall into a 28 few general categories, summarized below.

Statements of Fraud: Plaintiff alleges that the Smick Defendants made numerous statements accusing him of fraud and other non-specific criminal activity (e.g. “It took a lot of hard work to break every single one of these rules with our fraudulent charity, but we pulled it off”; “he did, it’s fraudulently registered as a non-profit charity.”). However, courts have held that loose and vague online accusations of criminal conduct, including fraud, may well be understood as non-actionable hyperbole. See, e.g., Nicosia, 72 F. Supp. 2d at 1104 (in context, defendant’s assertions on her website that plaintiff was a “fraud,” a “criminal,” and had acted illegally were mere hyperbole).

Statements About Sex and Child Pornography: Plaintiff alleges that the Smick Defendants published statements accusing Plaintiff of possessing child pornography and having certain sexual fixations (e.g., “Strange how Aaron mentions that he think [sic] Diego wants to ‘get in his pants’. Sounds like may be revealing some deeper desires there”; “The only thing that has been revealed here is that Aaron Greenspan has child pornography at his house. I do not.”). However, in the context of a heated internet debate, accusations of far-fetched sexual conduct would not be taken seriously by a reader. See, e.g., Krinsky, 159 Cal. App. 4th at 1176–77 (no reasonable reader would take internet post seriously, though unquestionably vulgar and insulting, which stated “I will reciprocate felatoin [sic] with Lisa even though she has fat thighs, a fake medical degree, ‘queefs’ and has poor feminine hygiene.”); Leidholdt v. L.F.P. Inc., 860 F.2d 890, 894 (9th Cir. 1988) (in context, statements that plaintiff was “sexually repressed,” believed “sex is humiliating,” and hated men, sex, and herself would be understood as exaggerated criticism).

Inventing Facebook: Plaintiff claims that the Smick Defendant made multiple statements that Plaintiff did not invent Facebook. These statements could only be viewed as opinions on the issue. Moreover, no reasonable person believes that Plaintiff invented Facebook.

Asperger’s Syndrome/Psych Ward: Plaintiff claims that Defendant published statements that Plaintiff has Asperger’s syndrome and is held in a psychiatry ward. As an initial matter, a statement that a person has Asperger's syndrome is not defamatory because there is nothing disparaging about having that medical condition. More importantly, loose and rhetorical criticisms of a person's mental health in online disputes are not taken seriously by reasonable person. See, e.g., Lieberman v. Fieger, 338 F.3d 1076, 1079–80 (9th Cir. 2003) (attorney's reference to psychiatrist as "Looney Tunes," "crazy," "nuts," and "mentally imbalanced," were not actionable where no reasonable viewer would have taken the statements as factual).

Miscellaneous Statements: Finally, Plaintiff alleges that a few peculiar statements were unlawful, such as "I didn't worry when Aaron Greenspan said Elon paid me to kill him because it wasn't true"; and "to the police: if I am found dead in mysterious circumstances, it was almost certainly aaron greenspan he killed me for saying he didn't invent facebook (he didn't)." Contrary to Plaintiff's allegations, no reasonable person would believe from these statements that Plaintiff is a murderer or that Plaintiff accused Defendant Musk of hiring an assassin to kill him.

While clearly not the kindest words, no reasonable person would take any of these statements as factual pronouncements given the context. Thus, the statements are protected hyperbole or opinion and do not support a libel claim.

ii. Certain claims are barred by the statute of limitations.

Defamation claims have a one-year statute of limitations. CCP §340(c); see also Cusano v. Klein, 264 F.3d 936, 949 (9th Cir. 2001). Therefore, claims prior to the statute of limitations, such as "Statement 1" from January 2019, are time barred. (FAC ¶148.)

b. Plaintiff's has not stated a claim for IIED.

A claim for IIED requires: (1) outrageous conduct, (2) at plaintiff, (3) with intent or reckless disregard, (4) causing (5) severe emotional distress. See Hughes v. Pair, 46 Cal. 4th 1035, 1050–51 (2009). Here, Plaintiff has failed to state a viable IIED claim.

i. Plaintiff's IIED claim is duplicative of his libel claim.

When claims for infliction of emotional distress are based on the same factual allegations as those of a simultaneous libel claim, they are superfluous and must be

1 dismissed. See Rudwall v. BlackRock, Inc., 289 F. App'x 240, 242 (9th Cir. 2008) (quoting
 2 Couch v. San Juan Unified Sch. Dist., 33 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 1504 (1995)). Because the 3 vast majority of Plaintiff's IIED claim is based on the same factual allegations of his libel
 4 claim, Plaintiff's IIED claim must be dismissed. (FAC ¶185.) As discussed below, the few 5 remaining bases for Plaintiff's IIED claim do not constitute outrageous conduct and are 6 not linked to any severe emotional harm.

7 ii. Plaintiff has not alleged "outrageous" conduct.

8 Outrageous conduct must be so extreme as to go beyond all bounds of decency 9 tolerated by society; mere indignities, insults, threats, annoyances, petty oppressions and 10 the like are not enough. See Hughes, 46 Cal. 4th at 1050–51; see also Cochran v.
 11 Cochran, 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 494 (1998) (outrageousness is judged objectively). In 12 some circumstances, a district court can properly decide whether conduct is outrageous
 13 as a matter of law. See Henderson v. Office & Prof'l Employees Int'l Union, 143 F. App'x
 14 741, 744 (9th Cir. 2005).

15 When one strips away the bases for Plaintiff's IIED claim that are duplicative of 16 his defamation claim, the remaining conduct does not constitute outrageous conduct as 17 a matter of law. Specifically, the alleged misconduct that remains is: a) a prank phone call 18 to Plaintiff impersonating the phone company (FAC ¶¶36, 185); b) a communication with 19 Plaintiff's brother where Mr. Qazi supposedly wrote, "hi simon / how are you?"; and c) the 20 creation of an account in Plaintiff's name on a pornographic website. Given the realities 21 of internet banter, particularly when one, such as Plaintiff, voluntarily thrusts himself into 22 the blogosphere, and given the context of the parties' insults against each other, the 23 above-referenced conduct is not "outrageous" beyond mere "sticks and stones" insults
 24 and indignities. Thus, Plaintiff has not stated a viable IIED claim.

25 iii. Plaintiff has not alleged severe emotional distress.

26 To show severe and enduring emotional distress for an IIED claim is a "high bar."
 27 See Hughes, 46 Cal. 4th at 1051; Wong, 189 Cal. App. 4th at 1377 (lost sleep, upset 28 stomach, and generalized anxiety, along with conclusory allegation of suffering "severe emotional damage,” did not reflect severe emotional distress). Moreover, the cause of the emotional distress must have been directed toward the plaintiff. See Christensen v. Superior Court, 54 Cal. 3d 868, 903–06 (1991).

As an initial matter, Plaintiff has not linked his supposed emotional distress to the conduct that is not duplicative Plaintiff’s libel claim. In fact, most of the alleged emotional distress relates to conduct that also serves as bases for Plaintiff’s libel claim. (FAC ¶¶187, 188, 189, 191, 192.) Moreover, while Plaintiff claims that he lost “work hours” documenting the alleged misconduct, was gravely concerned that Mr. Qazi was communicating with third party Diego MasMarques, Jr., and was further gravely concerned about Mr. Qazi’s communications with Plaintiff’s brother who is severely disabled, such allegations do not reflect severe emotional distress. Finally, several of Plaintiff’s allegations are not actionable as they relate to conduct by anonymous actors and/or towards Plaintiff’s family members rather than Plaintiff. (E.g., FAC ¶185.) Thus, Plaintiff’s IIED claim fails for this reason as well.

c. Plaintiff does not allege a claim for Count VI under the UCL.

The UCL, Bus. & Prof. Code §17200 et seq., prohibits unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent business acts and practices. See Bus. & Prof. Code §17200. While the UCL covers a wide range of conduct, it is limited to conduct that can properly be called a business practice. See Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1143 (2003). Significantly, “[t]he UCL’s purpose does not require the same broad construction of the word ‘business.’” That v. Alders Maint. Assn., 206 Cal. App. 4th 1419, 1427 (2012). Where a dispute is not related to any activity that might be deemed in the least bit commercial, it is not within the scope of the UCL. See id. Here, Plaintiff’s allegations against the Smick Defendants are not tied to any commercial activity. Rather, the allegations reflect a highly personal, non-business dispute between Plaintiff and the Smick Defendants.

Moreover, to state a UCL claim, a private plaintiff must allege an injury in fact and loss of money or property as a result of the unfair competition. See In re Adobe Sys., Inc. Privacy Litig., 66 F. Supp. 3d 1197, 1223 (N.D. Cal. 2014); Archer v. United Rentals, Inc.,

195 Cal. App. 4th 807, 816 (2011) (alleged collection of information in violation of privacy laws did not equate to lost money or property); Fitbug Ltd. v. Fitbig, Inc., 78 F. Supp. 3d 1180, 1197 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (no evidence that critical online reviews caused lost money or property). For example, in Hernandez v. Specialized Loan Servicing, LLC, No. CV 14-9404-GW JEMX, 2015 WL 350223, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 22, 2015), the court found that expending time and resources providing documents and court costs and fees of pursuing a case did not satisfy the standing requirement. Plaintiff's UCL claim fails because he has not alleged any cognizable loss of money or property. Although Plaintiff imaginatively claims that he was forced to pay for parking and gas fees for going to the police station and spent hours "documenting misconduct" (FAC ¶¶238–40), those fees and hours are not lost money or property as a result of unfair competition. Moreover, the allegations either do not relate to any unlawful business practice (FAC ¶¶235–37), or Plaintiff fails to identify the causal connection to his alleged injury, such as the purported failure of Smick Enterprises to register in California, or calling, posting about, or impersonating Plaintiff's family. (FAC ¶¶234–36.)

Finally, the only monetary remedy available under the UCL is restitution. See Korea Supply Co., 29 Cal. 4th at 1146. Restitution is defined as an order compelling a UCL defendant to return money obtained through an unfair business practice to those persons in interest from whom the property was taken. See id. at 1144–45; see also Groupon, LLC v. Groupon, Inc., 859 F. Supp. 2d 1067, 1083 (N.D. Cal. 2012) (holding restitution was unavailable where defendant had not obtained money from plaintiff and plaintiff did not otherwise have an ownership interest in defendant's profits). Here, Plaintiff has not alleged that the Smick Defendants received any ill-gotten gains as a result of any unlawful business practice. Thus, Plaintiff is not entitled to any monetary relief under the UCL.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> Regarding injunctive relief, Plaintiff seeks an injunction barring the Smick Defendants from making further libelous statements, from impersonating others, and from operating the Smick Sites. (FAC Prayer.) However, the requested injunction constitutes a prior restraint on speech, which is "the most serious and the least tolerable infringement on First Amendment rights." Twitter, Inc. v. Sessions, 263 F. Supp. 3d 803, 809 (N.D. Cal.

Summary of anti-SLAPP Motion: The Smick Defendants have made a prima facie showing that the state law claims (libel, IIED, and violation of the UCL) arise from protected activity. Plaintiff has not alleged legally sufficient claims. Thus, the Court should strike the FAC's state law claims.

C. Plaintiff has not stated any sufficient claim against the Smick Defendants.

In addition to the Smick Defendants' basis for striking the state law claims under California's anti-SLAPP statute, all of the claims against the Smick Defendants should be dismissed under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Given the legal deficiencies and Plaintiff's already detailed allegations in the FAC with no foreseeable cure, Plaintiff's claims should be dismissed without leave to amend.

1. Plaintiff's Count I for libel per se fails to state a valid claim.

The Smick Defendants incorporate the arguments in Section B.2.a, supra. As outlined above, Plaintiff's libel cause of action fails to state a claim because it is based on non-actionable statements of opinion and rhetoric, rather than statements of fact.

2. Plaintiff's Count III for IIED fails to state a valid claim.

The Smick Defendants incorporate the arguments in Section B.2.b, supra. As outlined above, Plaintiff's IIED claim is duplicative of his libel claim, and Plaintiff fails to sufficiently allege outrageous conduct or resulting severe emotional distress.

3. Plaintiff's Count VI for copyright infringement fails to state a claim.

Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for copyright infringement because Plaintiff lacks valid copyright registrations and any limited re-posting of his book text was fair use.

a. Plaintiff's claim fails without valid copyright registrations.

A claim for copyright infringement under 17 U.S.C. §501 requires a valid copyright registration. See 17 U.S.C. §411(a); Fourth Estate Pub. Benefit Corp. v. Wall-Street.com, 2017). Under the prior restraint doctrine, a law cannot condition the free exercise of First Amendment rights on the unbridled discretion of government officials. World Wide Rush, LLC v. City of Los Angeles, 606 F.3d 676, 687 (9th Cir. 2010). Plaintiff has not alleged sufficient facts to support the least tolerable infringement on the Smick Defendants' First Amendment rights.

1 LLC, 139 S. Ct. 881, 886 (2019). Importantly, a text-only registration for a book does not
 2 cover photos included in the book. See, e.g., RoyaltyStat, LLC v. IntangibleSpring Corp.,
 3 No. CV PX 15-3940, 2018 WL 348151, at *3 (D. Md. Jan. 10, 2018) (“Defendants correctly
 4 note that the ‘781 Registration solely asserts copyright in ‘text’”).

5 Here, Plaintiff concedes that he only has a copyright registration covering the text
 6 (and notably, not photographs) of his book. (FAC ¶¶201 & Ex. K.) Thus, Plaintiff’s claims
 7 relating to the book photographs and other elements fail, and any allegations about 8 Plaintiff’s DMCA takedown notices relating to non-registered copyrights are irrelevant.

9 b. Commentary on limited book text constitutes fair use as a 10 matter of law.

11 The fair use doctrine is an equitable rule of reason that permits courts to avoid rigid 12 application of the copyright statute when it would stifle the very creativity that the law is 13 designed to foster. See 17 U.S.C. §107; Tresona Multimedia, LLC v. Burbank High Sch.
 14 Vocal Music Ass’n, 953 F.3d 638, 647–48 (9th Cir. 2020). Section 107 of 15 the Copyright Act outlines four non-exclusive factors for analyzing fair use: (1) the 16 purpose and character of the use; (2) the nature of the copyrighted work; (3) the amount 17 and substantiality of the portion used; and (4) the effect of the use upon the potential
 18 market for or value of the copyrighted work. See id. These factors are assessed on a 19 case-by-case basis and weighed together in light of the purposes of copyright. See Free
 20 Speech Sys., LLC v. Menzel, 390 F. Supp. 3d 1162, 1174 (N.D. Cal. 2019).

21 Though the fair use defense is a mixed question of law and fact, it may be decided 22 on a motion to dismiss if there are no material facts in dispute. See Free Speech Sys.,
 23 LLC, 390 F. Supp. 3d at 1174. With regards to parodies and satire, while the actual 24 amount of content taken is a factual issue susceptible of proof, it is a 25 question of law whether the taking is excessive under the circumstances. See Fisher v.
 26 Dees, 794 F.2d 432, 438 n.4 (9th Cir. 1986); see also Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. v. Nintendo
 27 of Am., Inc., 780 F. Supp. 1283, 1294 (N.D. Cal. 1991), aff’d, 964 F.2d 965 (9th Cir. 1992)
 28 (noting an “obvious” example of fair use is an unfavorable book review containing

1 quotations from the copyrighted work, along with criticism which may suppress demand,
2 and that another example is a parody).

3 In this case, Plaintiff claims Mr. Qazi posted “segments” of Plaintiff’s book from the 4 @Tesla_Truth parody Twitter account, “generally ridiculing the book,” amounting to 5 “quotes” from eight pages (FAC ¶¶202–03, 206.) This is classic parody and fair use that 6 is not actionable as infringement as a matter of law. Because the claim cannot be 7 remedied, it should be dismissed without leave to amend.

8 4. Plaintiff’s Count V for copyright information fails to state a claim.

9 The DMCA, 17 U.S.C. §1202(b), provides that no person shall “intentionally
10 remove or alter any copyright management information” (“CMI”), such as the title, author, 11 or terms identifying information set forth in a copyright notice, “knowing, or . . . having 12 reasonable ground to know, that it will induce, enable, facilitate, or conceal an 13 infringement of any right under this title.” See also Falkner v. Gen. Motors LLC, 393 F.
14 Supp. 3d 927, 938 (C.D. Cal. 2018) (noting lack of authority that failing to include CMI, 15 such as by the framing of a scene, rather than by editing or defacing CMI, constitutes 16 removal or alteration; and noting intent element requires knowledge of existence of CMI
17 and knowledge that CMI has been removed or altered); SellPoolSuppliesOnline.com, LLC 18 v. Ugly Pools Arizona, Inc., 804 F. App’x 668, 670–71 (9th Cir. 2020) (finding a notice is 19 not CMI if it is not conveyed in connection with the copyrighted content, such as when the 20 notice is at the bottom of a website, rather than on a photograph at issue).

21 Plaintiff’s §1202(b) claim fails for multiple reasons. First, Plaintiff fails to allege the 22 requisite intent for his claim. As discussed in detail above, the Smick Defendants did not 23 infringe any of Plaintiff’s copyrights. As such, the Smick Defendants could not have an 24 intent to induce, enable, facilitate or conceal an infringement. See Powers v. Caroline’s
25 Treasures Inc., 382 F. Supp. 3d 898, 903–04 (D. Ariz. 2019). Second, Plaintiff has not 26 alleged that any Defendant removed or altered any CMI because the claimed copyright 27 notices were on the websites (on the footer) and not on the photographs in question.
28 (FAC ¶¶208–11.) See SellPoolSuppliesOnline.com LLC v. Ugly Pools Arizona, Inc., 344

1 F. Supp. 3d 1075, 1083 (D. Ariz. 2018), aff'd, 804 F. App'x 668 (9th Cir. 2020) (“The 2 copyright notice is not in the body of, or the area around, the work at issue, the 3 photographs, and so it was not ‘conveyed in connection with’ the work in a way that makes 4 that information CMI.”). Thus, Plaintiff’s claim under 17 U.S.C. §1202(b) fails.

5 5. Plaintiff’s Count VI under the UCL fails to state a claim.

6 The Smick Defendants incorporate the arguments in Section B.2.c, supra. In 7 particular, Plaintiff’s UCL claim fails to state a claim because Plaintiff has not alleged, and 8 cannot allege, that the Smick Defendants engaged in a business practice, that Plaintiff
9 lost money or property as a result of that practice, or that the Smick Defendants received 10 ill-gotten gains from Plaintiff as a result of that practice.

11 6. Plaintiff’s Count VIII for securities violations fails to state a claim.

12 To state a claim under Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. §78j(b), and 13 Rule 10b-5, for market manipulation, a plaintiff must show: (1) the use or employment of 14 a manipulative or deceptive device or contrivance, (2) scienter, (3) connection with the 15 purchase or sale of a security, (4) reliance, (5) economic loss, and (6) loss causation, i.e., 16 a causal connection. See Desai v. Deutsche Bank Sec. Ltd., 573 F.3d 931, 938-39 (9th 17 Cir. 2009); see also ScripsAmerica, Inc. v. Ironridge Glob. LLC, 119 F. Supp. 3d 1213, 18 1236–37 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (noting the plaintiff must allege the defendant engaged 19 in manipulative acts, the plaintiff suffered damage caused by reliance on an assumption 20 that the market was free of manipulation, and the defendant acted with scienter and that 21 there was some market activity, such as wash sales, matched orders, or rigged prices).

22 Plaintiff fails to allege sufficient factual allegations as to the Smick Defendants, let 23 alone with the particularity required by Rule 9(b) and the PSLRA. Plaintiff has not alleged 24 facts supporting the elements of reliance, loss causation, and scienter, and Plaintiff has 25 failed to specifically allege any actionable manipulative conduct. For example, Plaintiff 26 states Defendants “engaged in manipulative acts that drove the price of TSLA shares to 27 artificially high levels” and that “market manipulation caused Plaintiff’s losses.” (FAC 28 ¶¶265–66.) However, Plaintiff has not identified any specific acts by the Smick Defendants constituting market manipulation (other than general claims of publicly supporting Tesla). Because there are no tenable amendments, this claim should be dismissed without leave to amend.

7. Plaintiff's Count X for injunctive relief fails to state a claim.

Injunctive relief is not a standalone cause of action. See Rockridge Tr. V. Wells Fargo, N.A., 985 F. Supp. 2d 1110, 1167 (N.D. Cal. 2013) (dismissing claim for injunctive relief with prejudice); Fauley v. Wash. Mut. Bank FA, No. 3:13-CV-00581-AC, 2014 WL 1217852, at *9 (D. Or. Mar. 21, 2014) (finding the claim "actually a prayer for relief . . ."). Further, to obtain equitable relief, there must generally be no adequate legal remedy. Cont'l Airlines, Inc. v. Intra Brokers, Inc., 24 F.3d 1099, 1104 (9th Cir. 1994).

Plaintiff's claim for injunctive relief should be dismissed as an improper cause of action to the extent it is based on other dismissed claims, and because Plaintiff has failed to allege facts showing inadequate legal remedies.

8. Plaintiff's request for attorney's fees should be stricken.

Plaintiff perplexingly seeks attorney's fees under 42 U.S.C. §1988, which relates to proceedings in vindication of civil rights. See also Farrar v. Hobby, 506 U.S. 103, 109 (1992). This statute is completely inapplicable, and the request by Plaintiff (pro per) for attorney's fees should be stricken from the FAC.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, the Court should (1) strike Plaintiff's state law claims against the Smick Defendants under California's anti-SLAPP statute, CCP §425.16, and award the Smick Defendants their related attorney's fees and costs, and (2) dismiss all of Plaintiff's claims against the Smick Defendants under Rule 12(b)(6) and award the Smick Defendants their attorney's fees and costs for the copyright infringement claim.
